PLEASURE IN READING

Books about Digital Literacy

Digital literacy, simply put, is the combination of being able to use, understand, and consciously engage with the online world. The Library offers many interesting and enjoyable books to help you with this.

Here are a few suggestions:

- Picture book: De anti-schermpolitie by Lenia Mayor
- Ages 6–9: Het geheim van de wifi by Angelique van Dam
- Ages 9–12: In Search of the Truth by Julie de Graaf
- For parents: Digital Parenting by Marije Legendijk
- Non-fiction: Digibrain – Anders Hansen

DIGITAL LITERACY

During Media Literacy Week, you can find a variety of books in the Library, as well as the game My First Smartphone. Media parenting is not always easy, but this game helps you make good agreements about when your child gets a smartphone and how to handle its use. While playing the game, you discuss important topics together. This helps you understand each other better and allows you to establish clear rules that fit your family.

You can play this game at the Witte Dame during Media Literacy Week, from November 7 to November 14.

TIP FROM THE LIBRARY

Workshop Responsible Vlogging

On Wednesday, November 12, Teun Peters—known from YouTube and cameraman for Dylan Haegens—will tell you everything about vlogging. How do you make good videos? Is it really easy to make money (spoiler: no, it isn't)? Teun will also address responsible vlogging. What should you post online, and what shouldn't you? How do you handle comments on your videos?

Join us from 2:30 PM to 4:30 PM at Youth Center Pitstop, Grand Combin 2 in Eindhoven. Sign up right away via this link.
